

MAY DEFER ACTION ON UNEMPLOYMENT RELIEF LOAD FUNDS

Such Looms in Wake of Disclosures of Declining
Rolls

MAY BE COMPROMISE

Should Know Definitely of Needs by First of June

HARRISBURG, May 21—Registered action on a program to finance Pennsylvania's unemployment relief load through next January, it was indicated today, will be postponed until after the first of June.

This possibility loomed in the wake of disclosures by state relief heads that some revision in their estimate of relief needs may be made because of declining direct relief roll and administrative cause.

If the revision is made, legislative leaders pointed out, it might offer a compromise program needed to settle the partisan differences they have involved. Republican heads charge the administration estimate of $80,991,000 for relief purposes through next January, is excessive.

Announcing a relief budget for June had been approved for $6,931,446, a reduction of $268,554 compared with previous estimates of $7,200,000 for the next month, Karl DeSchweinitz, state relief director, said there was a possibility some other estimates might be accomplished.

"We are studying the problem now," he explained, "and are now endeavoring to determine whether the recent reductions noted in our direct relief rolls will be continued. We should know more definitely by the first of June."

Michael Romagno Ordained A Sub-Deacon at Overbrook

Michael Romagno, brother of the pastor of St. Ann's parish, the Rev. Father Marcellini Romagno, received the Roman collar, this morning, when he was ordained as sub-deacon at St. Charles Seminary, Overbrook.

Mr. Michael Romagno studied for the priesthood at Taormina, Italy. At the request of His Eminence Cardinal Dougherty, the young man was transferred to Overbrook Seminary. Next year he will be ordained as a priest, and be appointed in the Philadelphia Diocese to work for the Italian people. Today he is the guest of his brother, the Rev. Fr. Marcellini Romagno.

DOYLESTOWN TAX RATE MAY HAVE TO BE JUMPED

Rate of Ten Mills May Be Increased Unless Delinquents Pay Up

HOW RATE IS DIVIDED

DOYLESTOWN, May 21—Borough Council expresses the opinion that unless drastic methods are employed to collect back taxes, the tax rate in the county seat will have to be increased. If the delinquent taxes are paid it will be possible to continue with the present rate of 10 mills, made up as follows: 5½ mills for general purposes, 4-2-8 mills for interest and retirement of bonds; 2-8 mill for fire tax purposes.

Councilman Bartram H. Moore, chairman of the police committee, announced that Jacob Frater, Doylestown, was the low bidder on a new traffic light to be erected in front of the Doylestown post office at the intersection of Main, Ashland and Green streets. Frater's bid was $397. The only other bid was $439.30 submitted by Charles B. Moyer, Doylestown. The light will be installed this week. A contract for $78.20 for the erection of a pole on which the light will be fastened, was also awarded.

Doylestown's much-discussed building ordinance, which has been read, examined, inspected and perused for months, but was never adopted, came in for "another look". The ordinance, "a big fat thing" covering more than a hundred pages, is believed to be too cumbersome, although it has been technically examined by at least one expert.

"About 50 per cent of the contents of that proposed ordinance is absolutely useless in Doylestown," declared A. Harry Clayton, president of Council. "What is needed is to have our solicitor look over the ordinance and study it. In passing a building ordinance you need the advice of a solicitor and not a technical expert."

"Well, I have done all I can to get a complete building ordinance together, and if any one wants to carry on the work and see what they can do, I'll certainly be glad to pass it along," Councilman Moore, of the police and fire committees, reported.

One expert, it was reported, wanted a fee of close to $1000 to put the ordinance in first class and workable shape. No action was taken and the ordinance was again placed in the files of Councilman Moore until called for again.

Brothers Celebrate Their Birthdays At A Party

A surprise double birthday party was tendered Bruce and Paul Peltz at their home, 353 Pond street, Tuesday night. The party was arranged by their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce W. Peltz, and was a tremendous success.

Bruce, Jr., entered his 19th year and Paul his 14th.

A repeat was served, and Bruce and Paul were the recipients of many fine gifts. Many games were enjoyed. Music was provided by Robert Rowant and his Wash Tub band.

Those present: Mr. and Mrs. Bruce W. Peltz, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Brescia and son Junior, Misses Anna, Elizabeth and Myrtle Peltz; Harvey Peltz, Mrs. Jesse Brown; Elwood Shire, Charles Letherbury; Emma, Eva, Ida and Violet Picari; Aaron, Chris and James Adams, Harry Walters, Francis Eckert, Raymond Eckert, William Bell, Jr., Charles Eberhart, Robert Rowant and Luke Letherbury.

State Dog Catchers Working In This Section

The quarantine placed on dogs by Burgess Clifford L. Anderson has expired but the quarantine made effective by the State is still in force and state dog catchers are touring Bucks County, catching all dogs found at large.

The state quarantine was dated March 30th and is effective for a period of 100 days.

The state men have visited Bristol on a number of occasions recently and were in town early this morning. They caught a number of dogs.

GOAL OF THE INQUISITION

(New York American, May 20, 1936)

The struggle to maintain the right of free speech in the United States is no longer in an anticipatory phase. The curtailment of free speech is definitely an established fact.

The first step in this curtailment was the formulation of a Government policy that an American citizen has no right of privacy in what he says. This is not something that may happen, BUT IT HAS BEEN DONE.

The next step will be the denial of the right of a citizen to say WHAT HE WANTS TO SAY. It is not a long step from scrutiny to prohibition.

And that this is the real goal of the Roosevelt Inquisition, we cannot doubt. We deceive ourselves if we do doubt it. They have gone as far as they dare, for the moment. They will go farther, as soon as they dare.

The true objective of the Roosevelt Government is to acquire the power, by whatever means necessary, to control speech in all its forms—spoken, written and wired, and by that means TO CONTROL THOUGHT.

The objective will be attained when the Government finally gets up the courage to COMMAND what may be said by American citizens AND WHAT MAY NOT BE SAID.

Free speech is anathema to a government of the Roosevelt type. It is hurt by criticism, because it deserves criticism. The Black-Guard Committee is not worried about what a newspaper publisher may say to a member of his staff. But it is scared stiff about what the newspaper may say to the people.

The inquisitors squirm under the lash of free speech. They long to stop it, and they will stop it in every degree and manner possible. The only thing standing in the way of an absolute denial of the right of free speech in America today is fear of what the people will do about it when they find it out.

The people of this country must be made to understand they are directly involved in the wholesale deprivation of liberties indulged by the present National Government.

Mr. Roosevelt is shrewd. He does not permit either himself or his agents to say bluntly to the people, "You cannot do this, or you cannot say that!"

Instead, a smoke screen of evasion veils each act of deprivation. The preliminary to each denial of lawful rights to a selected citizen is to crucify the victim in the eyes of the people. His motives are impugned, his character assailed and he is as thoroughly discredited before the public as possible.

This done, the theory of the inquisitors is that the people will not think of the victim as one of them, but as a culprit deserving punishment.

But in all this, the front lines of curtailed liberties are constantly being consolidated. And the fervent hope of the Raw Dealers is that the day will soon come when they can throw off the shackles of pretense and restraint, and assume control OF THE THINKING of the American people as a whole.

SIGN TRUCE ON FIRE PROTECTION

Lower Makefield and Morrisville Reach Agreement for Services of Firemen

WILL PAY $300 YEARLY

MORRISVILLE, May 21—Fire protection to that part of Lower Makefield Township south of the Pine Grove school house has been restored by the Morrisville Fire Department at the direction of Common Council. Notices have been issued to the Union and Capitol View companies and at the water works, where the fire calls are received, that service shall be resumed immediately. The new territory includes that section south of a line which is drawn from the Black Rock Road, on the River Road, across to the Pine Grove school house and then across to the Swamp Road.

An agreement between the Lower Makefield Township Committee and Morrisville Borough Council has been signed whereby the township officials agree to pay to Morrisville $300 a year for this service.

A few years ago fire protection to both Falls and Lower Makefield Townships was withdrawn when Common Council asked $1,000 from Falls Township and $400 from Lower Makefield. Later there was a compromise in the amount from Falls Township and service was restored. Lower Makefield supervisors held that they could not legally pay Morrisville for this service, and since that time they received protection from Yardley and other nearby towns. Last year the State Legislature changed the law and made it lawful for townships to pay other districts for fire protection, and as a result of this change Lower Makefield officials entered into the agreement with Morrisville.

NAME NEW OFFICERS FOR FATHERS' ASS'N

Paul V. Forster Heads Group
For the Ensuing Year;
D. Landreth Speaks

DINNER IS ENJOYED

A turkey dinner, election of officers, and an account of a trip to South America, occupied the attention of members of the Fathers' Association in the Bristol high school last evening.

With the failure of Judge Rosen to arrive to deliver an address, David Landreth entertained the fathers with an account of his Winter journey to South America. Some high school students also pleased with presentation of a sketch.

Mr. Landreth presided at the business meeting, and election of officers resulted as follows: President, Paul V. Forster; vice-president, Warren Woodruff; recording secretary, Earl W. McEuen; financial secretary, Paul D. Brown; treasurer, George R. King; members of executive board, Walter J. Rosser, Edwin Hey, Harry Barroth, Theodore C. Burns.

Paul D. Brown was in charge of arrangements for last night's dinner. This marked the last meeting until September.

Drive to Pass Bill

Washington, May 21—A major political and economic issue—whether the Federal government would begin price fixing in major industries with the controlling labor conditions—was thrust forward today in the Guffey-Vinson substitute for the Guffey coal law.

Rumblings of opposition forecasts heated Congressional debate on the substitute of the law held invalid by the Supreme Court.

A drive to enact the substitute bill which provides for price fixing and marketing conditions, may prolong the session.

Members skeptical of the substitute recalled that price fixing was the crux of the fight involving the invalidated N. R. A.

TO VIE FOR PRIZES

A card party will be conducted by the Mothers' Guild this evening at 8.30 in St. James' parish house. Prizes consist of a chair, glass set, linens, etc. Refreshments are to be sold. Mrs. John Sharp is chairman.

Two-Day Trip Taken By Twp. Eighth Grade Pupils

Forty-seven eighth grade students of Bristol Township public schools returned last evening from a two-day trip to Harrisburg, Gettysburg, Hershey and Valley Forge, where points of interest claimed their attention.

The trip, made in one bus and two private cars, proved very enjoyable.

Accompanying those who will graduate next Wednesday evening were: supervising principal, W. J. Kines; Miss Mary Wanner, Messrs. Henry Morgan and Andrew Jackson.

CHICKEN THIEVES TELL THEIR STORY TO COURT

Plead Guilty to Many Thefts and Blame Purchaser for Their Acts

RING-LEADER IN JAIL

DOYLESTOWN, May 21—A story of "easy money" offered them for stealing chickens and selling them to a Quakertown poultry and egg dealer now in the Bucks County Prison in default of $10,000 bail, was told yesterday in criminal court, here, by three youths who live near Quakertown.

One defendant, Richard Skees, 20, of Richland township, is a graduate of Quakertown High School. He confessed stealing 500 chickens on seventeen different escapades.

The other defendants are Sevellan A. Wilcox, 17, Quakertown R. D. 1, and Willard W. Keller, 17, of Quakertown. A fourth boy, Frank E. Wilcox, 15, of Quakertown R. D. 1, is also charged with chicken stealing, but his case will be disposed of in juvenile court.

A. Moes, 50, Hellertown avenue, Quakertown chicken and egg dealer, is under heavy bail in prison awaiting trial on charges of breaking, entering, larceny and receiving stolen goods.

The boys accuse Moes of starting them out in the chicken stealing business nearly a year ago, when he met them coming home from church and offered them, Ekees told, the Court, "easy money."

Skees testified that they would steal chickens about once a week and would sell them to Moes for 15 cents and 17 cents a pound at his barn in Quakertown. Moes, Skees testified, took out a one-third cut for himself out of the selling price and the boys got the balance.

Skees further testified that he had been paid about $100 on account by Moes, who still owed the boys considerable money.

The boys testified that Moes accompanied them on many of the trips and pointed out the places to be robbed. Skees said that they would not rob hen houses where the farms were posted, "These chickens tattooed."

The boys were arrested by State Police and County Detective Antonio Russo last Friday night when they were caught "on a job." Moes was arrested at his home.

Testimony in the case was heard by President Judge Hiram H. Keller and Judge Calvin S. Boyer.

District Attorney Arthur M. Eastburn suggested to the Court that sentence in the cases of the Wilcox brothers, Skees and Keller be deferred until after Moes is tried in court next week. It was intimated today that Moes may change his plea to guilty next week.

Augustus H. Levenknight, Quakertown, testified that Willard Keller was a trusted employee at his Quakertown store and that he would be willing to take young Keller back to work if the Court felt disposed to place the boys on probation and suspend sentence.

Dr. Wilson S. Erdman, Quakertown physician, the Keller family doctor, testified that the Keller boy was normal and that his parents were very fine people.

The Keller boy's Sunday school teacher, Howard Cotter, also testified in behalf of Willard W. Keller.

On the witness stand, Keller told the Court that he did not meet up with the other boys on the chicken thefts until May.

Captain Joseph O'Donnell, of Quakertown, was called as a character witness for young Skees, and testified that he has seen Skees in church nearly every Sunday morning.

Captain O'Donnell said that he was shocked when he heard of the arrests and is unable to explain why the boys stole chickens when they all were gainfully employed and had plenty of spending money, were church goers and one a high school graduate.

"My opinion is that the boys did not steal for the money they got out of it, but that it was for the spirit of adventure at first, and later on for profit," Captain O'Donnell said. "I also believe that all of these boys were allowed too much spending money."

WILL ATTEND SERVICE

Camp 89, P. O. of A. and Camp 789, P. O. S. of A., will attend the Sunday evening service in St. James' P. E. Church at 7.45. Members are requested to meet in front of the church at 7.30.

Wants Troops Withdrawn

London, May 21—Italy is pressing for withdrawal of the additional British and French troops sent to Addis Ababa at the outbreak of the Italo-Ethiopian war, International News Service learned today.

The Italian government, it was disclosed, has informally made known to the British and French foreign offices that Italy would appreciate withdrawal of the troops from the Ethiopian capital, which is now under control of Italian forces.

The British and French troops were sent to Addis Ababa to guard their respective legations.

Hindenburg Leaves

New York, May 21—Speeded along by a fast gale, the dirigible Hindenburg was well out over the Atlantic, headed for Germany on the final leg of its second trip between Frankfurt-on-Main and Lakehurst, N. J.

The big ship cast off from the mooring mast of the United States naval hangar at Lakehurst shortly after 11 o'clock last night, and after giving New Yorkers another glimpse of her shimmering silver side and gleaming pilot lights, moved out over the ocean. The ship arrived here early yesterday morning and was in port only 16 hours.

Start Stratosphere Flight

Swarthmore, May 21—The first of a series of robot flights into the stratosphere to explore conditions upon the earth's atmospheric limits got off to a flying start from the riding field of Swarthmore College today. Three hours later, Bartol Foundation received a radio report from the 1800 cubic foot bag, indicating it had reached a ten-mile height.

"We expect that it may reach thirteen miles," announced Dr. Thomas Johnson, of the Bartol Foundation and Franklin Institute. Dr. Johnson explained that the balloon carried an atmospheric barometer to record conditions and a radio to transmit data back to the earth.

ALUMNAE REUNION IS PLANNED AT ST. MARY'S

Date is May 27th; Arrangements for 100th Anniversary To Be Made Then

A CHORAL COMMUNION

BURLINGTON, N. J., May 21—Graduates of St. Mary's Hall, the historic church school of the Episcopal Diocese of New Jersey, will return here Wednesday, for the annual alumnae reunion. Several hundreds, many coming from far distant places are expected, as plans are to be made for the 100th anniversary of the school which will be celebrated during 1937. The school, a pioneer in higher education for young women, was founded in 1837 by the Rt. Rev. George Washington Doane, then Bishop of New Jersey, and is the second oldest church school for girls in the United States.

An executive committee meeting will be held at 10 o'clock, followed at 10.30 o'clock by a choral communion in the Chapel, with the Rt. Rev. Paul Matthews, Bishop of New Jersey as celebrant and the entire school as the choir.

Luncheon will be served at one o'clock and the business meeting will follow at 2.30 o'clock when plans will be made and committees appointed for the centennial celebration.

Miss Eliza Ridgway, of Burlington, is president of the Alumnae Association; Mrs. John A. Simons of Germantown; Mrs. Stobo Cato, of New York City and Burlington; and Mrs. John Biddle, of Burlington, are vice-presidents; Mrs. David Styer, of Bordentown, is recording secretary; Miss Mary L. Miller, treasurer; and Mrs. Edward H. Stout, registrar. Members of the Executive Committee are:

Miss Margaret Haines, Burlington; Mrs. John Hartman, Lancaster, Pa.; Mrs. Victor Newton, New York City; Miss Kathryn Salmon, New York City; Miss Sarah Olden, New York City; Mrs. Rupert C. Schaeffer, Jr., of Philadelphia.

Friends Tender A Party To Mrs. James Flanagan

Those attending: Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Burton, Mr. and Mrs. Leo Bertolami, Mr. Flanagan and sons, Joseph and James; Misses Ann Kennedy and Mary and Theresa Dennen; Joseph Wilkinson, Bristol; Thomas Stake, Tullytown; Boyd Hovatter, Morrisville.

SPEEDING OF AUTOS MUST STOP HERE, SAYS CHIEF JONES

Those Caught and Found Guilty Will Be Prosecuted

NO LENIENCY SHOWN

Final Warning is Given and Officers Are Given Instructions

Despite the fact that a few days ago it was announced that the authorities of Bristol had entered the National Traffic Safety Contest there are still a number of motorists who are using the streets of Bristol as race courses. These drivers are breaking the speed laws of the borough by racing their cars along Radcliffe, Beaver, Pond and another streets and are putting the lives of pedestrians, as well as the lives of other motorists, in jeopardy.

The police have been ordered by Burgess Clifford L. Anderson to arrest these drivers and to take them before a justice of the peace where, if found guilty, they will be fined in accordance with the law.

Chief of Police Linford J. Jones has instructed all officers that speeding and reckless driving in the borough must come to a halt and states that those caught need not ask for any privileges. "They will be given hearings," states the police chief.

A decided effort is to be made this year by Bristol borough to keep accidents at a minimum and with this idea in mind the borough officials joined the National Traffic Safety Contest for 1936.

A plea for the co-operation of every Bristol citizen in helping the borough win the contest was voiced by Chief Jones.

"We cannot possibly make a showing through the efforts of a few men alone," he said. "We will make every effort to hold up our end and I know we can count on all local organizations as well as citizens, to do their part."

"The reduction of traffic accidents, however, is the duty and responsibility of every man, woman and child in Bristol. One thoughtless or careless act on the part of a driver or a pedestrian may ruin an otherwise perfect record; a vast majority of our citizens are careful and law abiding, but a few drive in such a way that they are likely to cause an accident at any time. These few will jeopardize our chances of winning this great contest, unless, as I hope, they change their driving habits as a matter of civic duty."

Bristol high's track and field team of young men again went down to defeat before the crack Burlington, N. J., team, at the New Jersey school's field, yesterday afternoon. Final tabulations were 69-16.

The well-balanced team of Burlington far outclassed its much weaker rival in Bristol. Bristol won the shotput, and Burlington took first places in all other events. Joe Conti, Bucks County record holder, captured the event by a throw of 41' 6".

The other weight man, took second place. Wollard secured second place in the 220-yard dash; and Zeffries third in the broad jump. All other places went to the Jersey team.

Burlington is the defending Burlington County champion. On Memorial day the aggregation will defend its championship against all other schools of the county.

Bristol has never defeated its ancient rival in track work. Since rivalry between the schools was renewed, with all sports being played during the past three years, Burlington won three contests; Bristol one; and two were tied. These contests included track, football, etc.

PAUL KATZMAR BURIED

Paul Katzmar, 3215 Barnet street, Tacony, formerly of Bristol, died suddenly Sunday and was buried yesterday. Mr. Katzmar formerly resided on Jefferson avenue. Up to the time of his death he was connected with the police force of Philadelphia, and would have been retired in September. He is survived by his wife, two sons, two sisters, Mrs. Albert Schweitzer, Pine Beach, N. J., and Miss Emma May Katzmar, Germantown; two brothers, William Katzmar, Philadelphia, and Edward Katzmar, Torresdale Manor.

POTENTIAL CRIMINALS

The criminals who have figured prominently in the month's news have been, without exception, persons whose presence at large had been a reproach to some agency responsible for the protection of society. The whole history of Kerpis should have warned those who last paroled him that morally he was beyond repair. There was nothing in the record to support the optimism of his liberators.

In Maine, the murder of a 7-year-old child was traced to an ex-reformatory inmate on parole, and, in the course of questioning, a second murder, of a 12-year-old girl, is admitted by the prisoner. The most disquieting circumstance in this case was not the running loose of one dangerous character, but the fact that police had already interviewed several dozen suspects of whom they said that any one was capable of the crime in investigation.

There is something wrong in the safeguards society erects for itself when a crime of this type or that is followed by the round-up of previous offenders who "might have done it." It occurs to the judicious to wonder why a person who has demonstrated so incurable a tendency to crime that police thought turns naturally to him when crime is committed is not permanently removed from society.

We are not yet so clairvoyant that the liberty of the moral weakling can be abridged without an overt act on his part. But these offenders, and thousands of others, have been in prison and released in full knowledge that presently they would return.

UNNECESSARY NOISES

As to unnecessary city noise, our attitude is that of Calvin Coolidge's pastor toward sin. We are against it.

There are noises and noises, of course, and the significance of some of them we cherish even above the boom of silence: The merry clang of the carpenter's hammer after a long lull in the building line, and other sounds, inadvertent and inseparable from the activity which means our prosperity.

One of the city's fathers, a few years back, remarked the desirability of a return to the old-time smoke nuisance—and while smoke is largely abatable even in times of high production, the point of view applies in part to the problem of noise.

But there are around us a variety of other nerve-jangling racket which grew from nothing more than discourtesy—unnecessary tooting of horns being the most conspicuous. Our city spirits who would eliminate these will have the public on their side. The return this week of hot weather will revive the most unneeded of all extraneous noises: the remark, "Is it hot enough for you?" There ought to be a law against that.

When, asks a reader, will the Presidential campaign begin? Brother, it always begins with the inaugural address.

Il Duce has struck the shackles from the Ethiopian slave, he says. Now, if the slave is lucky, he will be out of bandages by autumn.

"The American public can be trusted to vote down the lawdry, vulgar and banal," says Elder Will Hays. And elect Ziebeck.

BLIND TO LOVE by HAZEL LIVINGSTON

SYNOPSIS

Mary Shannon, young and pretty stenographer, is broken-hearted when she learns that James Todd, Jr., is engaged to Neta Grainger. Mary had known "Jamie" for two years and, though he never committed himself, he inferred that some day they would marry. She tries to hide her hurt feelings from her parents and Aunt Willie. One night, Mary works overtime and her handsome employer, Stephen Bennet, takes her to dinner. He has just been appointed manager of the Seattle office of the A. A. Healey Steamship Company and wants Mary to go as his secretary. She does not want to leave her family. At home, Mary writes "Jamie" asking him to meet her when he comes to town so that she can congratulate him. Next day, at the office, Ethelyn Piper tells Mary that Stephen Bennet is "mad" about Mary. Therefore, when Mary bids Stephen farewell, she is exceptionally cool. Aunt Willie, middle-aged and trying to be young, spends all her money in beauty shops and on diets. When Mary finds her cleaning a dress to wear to Schumann's Neapolitan dance hall with the "girls," because she cannot afford to have it cleaned, Mary asks, "Is it doctors again?"

CHAPTER VIII

Aunt Willie poured the soiled gasoline back into the jug, spilling a little on the drainboard.

"My health comes first. I think a person owes that to themselves. I really do. Of course Dr. Wayne was entirely wrong about my arthritis. I wish I had said him. I had a right not to. But I'm adopting only the very latest and best now, and it is really marvelous the results that—"

"I know, Aunt Willie. But if you spend all you have now, what of the future?"

"The future? Why, what do you mean? I always think, do right and live right, and if you are a well person with vitality and magnetism everything comes in time, and science is discovering the most marvelous things every day about vibrations, and—"

"Listen! You've just squandered and squandered—"

"That's all you know about it. Whose money is it? I work for it, don't I? I got to think of myself, too, don't I? I never buy the expensive things you do! Lookit the stockings I've got on right this minute!"

"When the girls all went to the new fortune teller last week I wouldn't go. I said I wouldn't pay two dollars. I think that two dollars, even if it is a card reading, and a crystal gazing included, is too much, although they do say that she's very fine. I may try her, but I haven't decided. I think a person has to be very careful before they invest in things like that, because a good many of them are simply fakes, and I think—"

Of course Aunt Willie's momentary flash of temper was over before she'd finished talking about the crystal gazer, but Mary's own resentment lingered. She was still in a bad mood when Ma called her to dinner, and Aunt Willie, wearing the still shaggy tan cape and too much rouge, was already finishing her desert because she had to meet "the girls" early.

Mary managed to joke a little with Pa, she helped Ma to do the dishes. She listened, a little frown between her eyes, while Ma told her some of the financial worries. . . . Pa's commissions were so small, she didn't know how they'd ever take care of the insurance, and there were the taxes, and the interest on the mortgage.

And all the while she was really thinking of Jamie, counting the hours until she could see him again, until he'd come to her and explain, and this nightmare of the Vesta Grainger interlude would be over.

Four days slipped by. A week. Eight days.

Mary Shannon got through them, like a girl walking in her sleep. It seemed to her that she might not have received her letter. Letters do go astray . . . not often, of course, but sometimes . . .

Sometimes she was on the point of writing again. She'd begin several letters, writing furiously, under cover of her notebook.

Samson, the new manager, had a cold fishy eye. He was pleasant enough, but she had the feeling he was looking for fault to find with her. Probably wanted to catch her in some mistake, then fire her and send for his own stenographer.

Twice she caught herself inserting letters in the wrong envelopes. Her sweet broke out on her forehead. One bone like that, and she'd lose her job. She'd just have to stop thinking about Jamie in office hours . . .

The envelope slipped from her fingers, tears stung her vacant eyes. . . . Oh, Jamie, Jamie come back to me . . . God, fix this for me, and I'll never ask you anything else again all my life. . . .

There were times that she thought she couldn't bear it. When pride was nothing, and the gnawing ache of her love was everything. When she thought she could go to him and beg him to take her, in spite of everything in the world. When she understood all the foolish girls she'd scoffed at before, when she was patient with Ethelyn Piper, whose eyes were so often red behind her shell-rimmed glasses, when even Aunt Willie's cravings were akin to her own hunger.

Once a young, widow, wan and white under her black veil, sat beside her on the street car. She envied her. It wouldn't be so hard to lose someone you loved through death. To have the memories, the sweetness of what had been, even though it was gone forever. To be able to flaunt your grief in black crepe, to be the widow. . . . Not half so hard as knowing you're just the forgotten girl, and the one you love is engaged to someone else and you must hide your grief, your bitter, irreparable loss under a mask of "It's really nothing to me"—and all the while your heart breaking . . .

Sometimes, at work in the office, busy decoding a cable, or transcribing notes, she'd stop, and it would seem to her that she had missed a beat or two and she'd all but see old Johnny Bunk, the postman, clumping up the front stairs, sliding a letter into the black mail box on the porch.

If there were just some way of making sure . . . making sure that her letter was really home waiting for her, she could get through the hours. She'd toy with the idea of calling Ma on the telephone knowing all the while that she wouldn't, for Ma would never get over it if she made a ten-cent telephone call from San Francisco, just to ask if there was any mail.

Her fingers typed, "Pinkerton Lumber company making offer to charter 'S. S. Emma R.'—and 'Hoping to hear from you at your earliest convenience, believe me very truly yours,' but in her heart she was reading the letter—"

"Darling, it was all a mistake, and now that it's over we can be married. . . . The folks are determined to have a big church wedding. . . . You must let me bring you, this week-end, to meet them—"

She'd answer the telephone in her crisp "business" voice:

"Heeey Steamship company. No he isn't—I'll have him call you!"

And all the while she could see herself walking down the aisle of some dim, flower-decked church, while the organ played softly, and Jamie waited by the altar . . .

"I, Mary, take thee, James—"

The soft light from the candles—(there'd be tall white candles and St. Joseph lilies, the way they had them in the Episcopal church where she went last Easter with the Harveys)—would gleam on the ivory satin of her gown. She'd look up through dark lashes (must remember to put on olive oil every night to make them longer) and meet Jamie's look of pure adoration. Straight and slim and very young, she'd look in the high vaulted old church . . .

"What a beautiful bride!" "Yes, but she's more than beautiful, she's a glamour about her, a radiance . . ."

It was all so real. More real than the office. More real than the commuters she passed on her way to the ferry at night.

Then she'd get home. "Any mail?"

And Ma would hardly look up from the stove to say: "No, I don't think so, Babe—"

Or she'd say something else, like —Yes! Your Aunt Mamie sent a postcard from Tia Juan. They drove 260 miles just so Gus could get a Baccardi cocktail. Imagine writing THAT on a postcard, where anyone could read it. And if that's the way money affects a man, why I'm just as glad your father—

"Nothing for ME?"

"For you? Oh, yes! Now where did I put that? It came this morning, and as he brought it up, Mr. Blank said, 'For the little lady' so I'm sure . . . Well, Mary! Don't take my head off! It isn't lost! And anyway, it's only an ad from the Emporium!"

No one could understand. She couldn't understand herself. But days were just to be endured until she could get home to see if the letter was there. Nights were the dark stretches of disappointment between the days. Life was nothing but waiting for the mail.

Sometimes the tension would leave her. Hope would come back . . . The certainty that he was thinking of her, coming to her, would be so strong, that peace, like a blessed reprieve, would steal over her, and for a little while the heart-ache would be gone.

She'd go to her room, look at the wedding day she had once been so sure of. The ivory satin nightgown, the two pairs of super-sheer chiffon hose, the pale blue Japanese kimono, embroidered in wistaria, lined in pomegranate.

She'd look at herself, long and searchingly, in the long mirror of her curly-mirror vanity. Her eyes were really lovely. Clear, gray-blue, and set wide apart. Her features could be better . . . She'd like to be perfect, for his sake, so that he'd look at her, and look at her, and never get used to her beauty . . . But she wasn't bad. In fact, she was awfully pretty. Though her nose was a little small, and her mouth a little large for real beauty.

But when you have good eyes, and hair and skin, and a lovely slim figure . . .

He MUST love her still! He'd kissed her eyes, and her hair, and the hollow of her throat. He'd told her how beautiful she was—He'd showed that he loved her, time and time again. He COULDN'T have stopped.

She told herself that, over and over, even while she struggled to forget. Even while she bought Sacramento papers, tortured herself looking for items about Miss Vesta Grainger, fiancée of James Todd Jr.

But he didn't write and he didn't come, and in spite of the hope that never quite died, she began to know that he never would.

Nor could she nurse her sorrow in decent peace. Samson kept her furiously busy at the office, and when Ma drove her nearly frantic about Aunt Willie's home.

TRIBUTE TO OUR LATE BROTHER, CHARLES HUCKVALE

For fifteen years or more, have we, As members of our Fraternity, Held in high esteem, a man Who's purely a Patriotic American.

Untrifling in his efforts to bring New members into our fraternal ring, Sacrificed himself in every way, To build up our P. O. S. of A.

For several years, in our Order, He held the office of Recorder, Efficient in all he undertook, The duties of his office he never forsook.

It's very hard for us to comprehend, Our faithful brother's tragic end; It has caused our hearts to be in pain, But all of us feel, our loss is God's gain.

To You, our Father, this request we submit, That our faithful brother has a place to sit In that Great Fraternity beyond the sky, Where we all can meet him by and by.

Why Choke When You Can Have "Asthmanefrin"

Attention
Asthma and Hay Fever Sufferers

"ASTHMANEFRIN" treatment for the relief of the symptoms of asthma and hay fever is based upon the theory now well substantiated, that this condition is brought on due to insufficient glandular secretions within the body. Asthmanefrin is a solution for inhalation. It is used with a special patented vaporizer, something entirely new in principle. It is easy and pleasant to use, as the vapor is inhaled directly into the lungs. This produces a direct action on the nerve endings which results in immediate relief from asthmatic spasms and hay fever distress.

It is a lasting relief unheard of before in any other preparation. Hundreds of letters open to inspection praise the merits of this remarkable new treatment. Simple in its use, astounding in results, no injections, no powder to burn, no vaccines to use. Just squeeze the bulb and inhale deeply a few times each day.

Don't run away from hay fever, don't suffer any longer with asthma. Go to your druggist and get your free trial treatment today. It is guaranteed to help you and sold exclusively by Hoffman's Drugs, 310 Mill Street—(Advertisement.)

"PICK-A-BACK" PLANE TESTED IN LONDON

Seaplane Will Be Perched
Atop of "Porter" Machine
And Then Released

FOR MAIL SERVICE

By Charles A. Smith
(N. S. Staff Correspondent)
(Copyright, 1936, I. N. S.)
ROCHESTER, Eng., May 21—(INS)—First British test flights of the Mayo experimental "pick-a-back" composite aircraft, which aeronautical engineers hope will provide a successful means of carrying mails across the Atlantic by air, will be staged in the late summer of this year.

The scheme envisages a giant high-wing flying boat, which will act as a "porter" machine, and a considerably smaller float seaplane of special construction, which will be perched on top of the carrier "plane."

It is this smaller machine which, if the test flights are satisfactory, will next year make the actual non-stop ocean flight from the coast of Ireland to New York. It will be released from the carrier craft at a height of about 5,000 feet and when the two "planes" together are speeding at 100 mph.

The carrier machine will then return to its base, while the upper component will continue out over the Atlantic headed for Newfoundland and New York.

With the co-operation of Short Brothers, famous British firm of seaplane builders who are constructing the first Mayo composite craft for Imperial Airways, this correspondent was the first American newspaperman granted permission to inspect the composite machines now taking shape in Short's workshops on the banks of the River Mersey here.

Officials of the construction firm admitted the scheme was purely experimental and fraught possibly with considerable risk, but declared the idea was a sound one and that, provided the trial flights in September and October are successful, the first composite aircraft would go winging out into the Atlantic in the Spring of 1937.

The two foremost test pilots employed by Short Brothers had already volunteered for the job, it was stated, and would handle the test flights before delivery to Imperial Airways, whose own pilots will man the machines for the Atlantic venture.

The porter machine inspected by this correspondent was a giant four-engined monoplane of about the same size as the Sikorsky flying boats, with a wing span of 114 feet, and a length of 88 feet. The engines are mounted on the leading edge of the wings,

SUNDAY DINNER Suggestions

By ANN PAGE

BEEF, butter and broilers are three foods worthy of attention this week. All other meats are relatively high compared to beef. Butter prices are really very attractive. The new broiler season is just beginning but prices are reasonable. Many varieties of fish are plentiful and cheap. Greens both for cooking and salad are cheap. Other cheap vegetables are green beans, peas, spinach, cabbage and the first peaches and huckleberries of the season have been shipped but it will be several weeks before they are plentiful. Our fruit choice lies chiefly between strawberries, pineapple, oranges and bananas. Rhubarb should not be forgotten at this season.

Here are three menus planned for different budget levels.

Low Cost Dinner
Pot Roast of Beef Potatoes
Carrots Onions
Bread and Butter
Cup Cakes with Strawberry Sauce
Tea or Coffee

Medium Cost Dinner
Roast Beef Mashed Potatoes
Green Beans
Bread and Butter
Strawberry Shortcake
Tea or Coffee

Very Special Dinner
Fruit Cup
Standing Rib Roast
Browned Potatoes
Scalloped Onions Buttered Asparagus
Hearts of Lettuce
Rolls and Butter
Strawberry Sherbet Gold Cakes
Coffee

while three-bladed variable pitch propellers are fitted.

When not in use as a carrier "plane" it will be used on the regular Imperial Airways services here, carrying up to 24 passengers in great luxury, but for the carrier service it will be virtually an empty shell, carrying just sufficient gasoline for the job and a crew of three.

The upper component, a beautifully proportioned aluminum colored high wing monoplane, appears to be no larger than most of the machines which in the past have accomplished the Atlantic crossing.

It is powered by four air-cooled engines and is perched high on double floats.

For the Atlantic venture it will be a virtual gasoline tank, since it is intended to give it a range of at least 3,500 miles non-stop with a crew of two and a small load of mail. The fuel reserve, it is felt, will enable the "plane" to make New York in safety even in the face of continuous 40 m.p.h. head winds.

Normally a machine of its size would not be able to get off the water with such a tremendous fuel load, but the composite take off method makes it able to carry a load and have a range only obtainable in a seaplane of much larger size.

Quick release valves have been provided to enable the pilot to dump gasoline in the event of a bad get-away and forced descent.

It is claimed by Short's that the chances are two to one in favor of the small "plane" making a successful landing in emergency, since the taking off height of 5,000 feet would give the pilot ample time to jettison his gas load.

The crew of two on the upper component will be all-round pilots, navigators and radio operators, each capable of getting the machine to New York alone.

Secret gear is being built to enable the two "planes" to part company in complete safety once the required height and speed has been reached. The gear is virtually in triplicate. Pilots in both machines will be in telephonic touch and will each release a gadget from their cockpits.

Provided everything is perfect, this manual action will release the "planes," but a third foolproof gear is fitted, which will not come into play and allow the machines to part unless a drag pressure of at least 5,000 pounds is being exerted, thus showing that the manual gears have operated correctly and the machines are straining to part.

Test flights will be made over the North Sea and the English Channel. The first ocean flight proper will start from a point off Galway, on the west coast of Ireland.

Langhorne who were present included Harry C. Knotts and Charles Brudon, Sr.

Mrs. Dorothy Robinson will be hostess at the next meeting and luncheon of the Friendly Sewing Circle, May 28th.

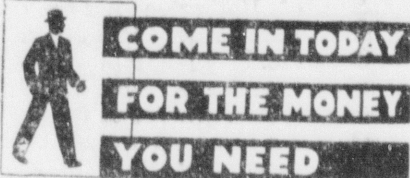

Mrs. Tacie Mather is on the sick list.

Jimmie Allen Is Starred In The Movies

The popularity of Richfield Hi-Octane Gasoline's radio program, "The Air Adventures of Jimmie Allen" caused Paramount to secure the services of Jimmie Allen to appear in a full length feature film called "The Sky Parade."

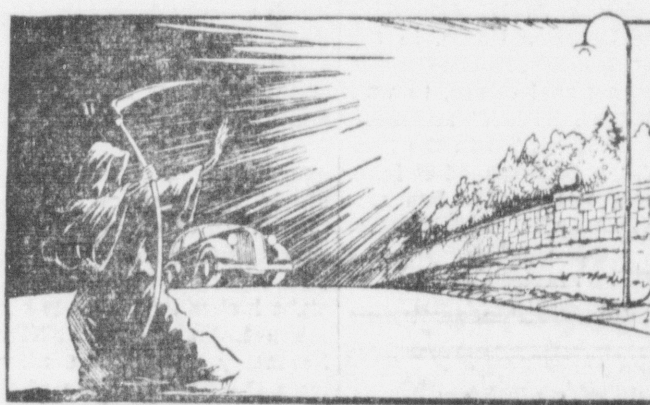

500,000 boys and girls in the Eastern states have joined the Jimmie Allen Club which has been sponsored by Richfield Hi-Octane Gasoline, and Paramount has found that "The Sky Parade" has drawn large audiences in every theatre in which it has appeared. A great deal of its popularity has been due to the interest in Jimmie Allen on the part of many families in each community who have followed his adventures over the radio.

It is suggested that Jimmie Allen fans and others interested in aviation stories watch for this picture at their local movie theatre.

Why Death in the Spring?

Comes spring, and the first breath of summer. The open country calls—and there are upon every highway motorists by the thousands... The question arises: Should spring, of all seasons, become a special time of Death?

Careful driving, strict compliance with traffic regulations, certainly that every part of the car is functioning properly—these will do much to reduce the possibility of accident.

But there is another ingredient in this Formula of Safety... Light! Public authorities, while enforcing regulations for the good of all, should be alive to the duty to keep highways properly lighted at night. For statistics show it is then that most accidents occur, and that with proper illumination the number automatically decreases.

BEHIND THE SCENES in HOLLYWOOD

By HARRISON CARROLL
Copyright, 1936,
King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Gary Cooper

HOLLYWOOD—These Changing Scenes: These days it is possible to tour the Orient without leaving Hollywood. To "The Good Earth" and "Lost Horizon" is now added Paramount's "The General Died at Dawn."

I beat even Gary Cooper to the set on the first day of the picture.

It is a Chinese street scene covered over by a huge brown canvas. Carpenters are still hammering on one balcony and a dog trainer is escorting some dirty-looking mongrels to their posts in doorways of the houses.

Director Lewis Milestone is on hand, directing the setup of the cameras, and so is Clifford Odets, Broadway's favorite young playwright and the author of the script. Odets has cut off some of his bushy hair since coming to Hollywood and is even considering buying a small car, though he is afraid of owning any kind of property because, he explains, "it might tie me down."

I ask him if he can give me a one-word description of Hollywood.

"Temporary," he says, "to me that sums it up. Nobody acts as if they belong here, or expected to stay a long time."

"The maddest set in Hollywood" is how they describe "My Man Godfrey," the Universal picture in which Carole Lombard plays New York's dumbest debutante, and William Powell, a down-at-the-heels gentleman who becomes her butler.

Besides the two stars, there are Alan Mowbray, Alice Brady, Eugene Palette and Mischka Auer, all a little crazy, and Gail Patrick, who's sensible enough but hopelessly outnumberted.

Even Gregory La Cava, the director, is a bit "tetched in the head."

I get my first laugh on the set this week when I see Carole's makeup. This Lombard person is nothing if not sophisticated, but, for "My Man Godfrey," she has her hair parted in the middle and falling away from her face in soft waves. She looks about 13 years old and so naive that it brings the protective instinct right out in you.

While I watch, they make a scene in which Alan Mowbray recites a wild yarn about the new butler being a married man with five children. Carole is falling in love with the butler and, as she listens, various emotions are supposed to chase each other across her face.

She does it perfectly the first time and someone shouts: "One take Lombard!"

"Yeah," flips baby-faced Carole,

"that comes from my Sennett training. We had to do it right the first take, or we gave out of film!"

Bing Crosby recordings used to be Joan Crawford's favorites, but now the phonograph on her set plays mostly classics.

Joan never does anything halfway. She is the moodiest of Hollywood actresses, not even excepting Garbo, and on the morning that I visit "The Gorgeous Hussy" set this week, she is sad.

We sit and talk in her portable dressing room, where I have to draw my feet up under my chair to keep from soiling the voluminous skirts of her gown.

Joan is suffering a touch of her old inferiority complex.

"There are so many fine actors in this cast that I am scared to death," she tells me. "I see Lionel Barrymore, Melvyn Douglas, Robert Taylor, James Stewart and I wonder how I am ever to hold up my end."

"This morning, I was supposed to be sitting at a desk writing, and I was so nervous I dropped the pen three times. My hands were ice-cold."

It is a repetition of many talks I have had with Joan. She has been that way since "I first knew her in the days of 'Our Dancing Daughters'."

Simone Simon pretends she doesn't understand much English when you meet her, but the word "temperament" gets a prompt reaction out of her.

It's better, however, not to bring the subject up even in a kidding way, as I find out this week when I have about 80 seconds of one-sided conversation with the actress on the "Girls' Dormitory" set at 20th Century-Fox.

Talking with Herbert Marshall a few minutes later, I am assured, though, that Simone is NOT being temperamental on this new picture, and that she is a clever little trouper.

An amusing thing happens. We are standing in a replica of a beer garden in the Austrian Tyrol. Nearly is a ferris wheel, which Constance Collier calls "a round-about."

A couple of extras have been halted in the chair which is at the topmost curve of the wheel. Constance exclaims:

"Nothing in the world would persuade me to go up in that thing!" Just then, an assistant director comes up. "All right, Miss Collier," he says, "You and Mr. Marshall go up in the wheel now."

What's more, they did.

owners—are you paying $24.48 a year too much for gasoline? Are you among the 10,391 motorists who told us they're averaging only 16.2 miles per gallon from other gasolines? Or have you made the big discovery that you can get 21.9 miles a gallon from Richfield Hi-Octane?

Road tests have proved that Richfield's extra mileage can save $24.48 a year for the average Ford, Chevrolet and Plymouth owner. That's why thousands of motorists a month are changing to Richfield! Try this thrifty gasoline in your tank...check your mileage figures...and let your own speedometer tell you the money-saving difference!

ST. ANN'S BATTING SPREE DEFEATS EDGELY GIANTS

BRISTOL TWILIGHT LEAGUE

Schedule for Tonight
TULLYTOWN and CASEYS
(Leedom's Field)
LEGION at BATH ROAD M. C.
(Bath Road Field)

St. Ann's A. A. had its batting spree last night on the Edgely diamond as the players amassed twelve safe hits in subduing the Edgely Braves, 9-3, in what turned out to be a one-sided contest after being closely-fought for four innings.

At the beginning of the fifth, the St. Ann's team was enjoying a one-run lead, 3-2, but six runs in the final three cantos made the fray one-sided. The entire nine runs were made off the flanking of Ira Walterick. St. Ann's used two twirlers, Whyno relieving Antonelli in the seventh when the starting hurler allowed three bingles in three at-bats.

The fielding of Bert Avella and Teddie Tosti helped the Saints to put the game in their win column. Although charged with an error, Tosti fielded seven ground ball brilliantly. Avella travelled plenty of ground in left to spear four fly balls to help Antonelli out of ticklish situations.

With the stick, Mike DeRisi continued his heavy bludgeoning by connecting with three singles in the same number of official trips to the plate. This enabled him to lift his average as he has hit safely five times in his last eight trips to the platter. For the losing team, Johnny Dick and Freddie Hibbs had two hits each.

By virtue of the triumph, St. Ann's held on to second place in the league standing, being trailed by the Hibbes. St. Ann's has won five and lost one with the Hibbs winning four and losing one. The Caseys in first place are undefeated and have captured three straight.

years. It should awaken fond recollections in some of the athletes of days gone by.

"Sports Editor of Bristol Courier:

"In your always interesting stories of local athletes and their accomplishments, it was a real source of pleasure to read an item by a former Bristolian, Mr. Weissblat. In the course of his remarks he stated that the football team of the Bristol A. A. a few years ago which played on Sullivan's Field, was the best football outfit ever seen in this old burg. Well, maybe it was the best team he had ever seen here, but if memory serves me right, the football team of the early athletes excelled any others ever put on a local field here."

"This team was composed of Bristol boys and again during one of the ancient memories we find on the roster such names as: Thos. Scott, Stan Runyan, John and Maurice Dorrance, Phil Halzel, Horace Booz, Sydney Hutchinson, and Edward Horace Swain, a few others whose names I cannot recall.

"In this sporting era eleven men started the game at it any one player was forced to leave if no one was allowed to take his place. Feather pillows were never used to cushion the punch which was often taken on the chin. No 'time' was ever taken out and a player was very fortunate if he was able to get together, in one piece, the shirt he started with.

"Players were encouraged to do their utmost on both sides and not like some of today's spectators, who have never seen a real tough game outside of a movie reel, fill old man ether with the baby cry: 'Take him out.' The old-timers stayed there.

"After the lapse of so many years we look back to see the accomplishments of this youthful team of former Bristolians. Tom Scott, as he is known to most of us, is the banker, par excellence, and still doing business here, Stan Runyan, who was captain of this team, is another type of civic-minded character and a former superintendent of Thos. L. Leedom's Carpet Mills. John Dorrance became the head of the great Campbell's Soup Company and whose wealth so fabulous that New Jersey and Pennsylvania are both fighting for millions of it.

Horace Booz is now Colonel Booz, and during the World War, he took charge, with Sir Henry Thornton, of Newtown, Pa., of the transferring of nearly 4 million American soldiers to France. Edward Swain is in the coal trade in Philadelphia, at present. His brother, Horace, has been dead for some years now. Maurice Dorrance is one of the early doctors in this country to make blood transfusions so successful. Sydney Hutchinson is another high official of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

"In those days there were no paid coaches. What a player carried around with him on the battlefield (and that's the right word for it), were a few intricate numbers as signals, and plenty of what the G-men of today have—'guts.'"

"OLD TIMER."

Dramatic Disputes in Sport

By BURNLEY

Controversial storms and an avalanche of arguments were started early this year by Top Row's triumph in the rich Santa Anita jockey classic. Charges were hurled back and forth, and it was alleged that Johnny Wayne Wright, who rode the winning horse, used rough tactics in booting the Baron colt home.

Tommy Luther, rival jockey in the race, took a punch at Wright afterward because of Wayne's alleged cowboy tactics, but the complaints of Tony riding were unavailing as far as changing the result of the race.

Early this month the turf again furnished dramatic debates over the unlooked for defeat of Beverly in the famed Kentucky Derby. The Widene horse, victim of typical bad luck at the start of the Derby, came on only to be nosed out of victory when the same Wayne Wright got a taste of his own rough riding tactics. Loud shouts of foul by supporters of Beverly filled the air, but, as usual, nothing happened.

Golf also furnished a controversial contest this spring, when Horton Smith's victory in the Augusta Masters' was laid open to question because of an infraction of the rules. Lawson Little, out of the running, putted out of turn at the final hole, showing Smith the speed of the rain-soaked green and enabling him to drop the winning putt into the cup.

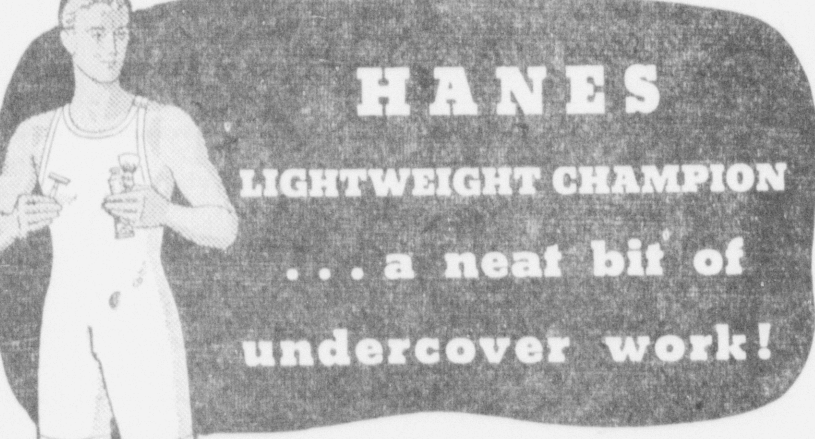

Any mention of debatable sports events inevitably brings up the name of that greatest of storm centers, Jack Dempsey. Almost all of his fights aroused controversy—remember the Firpo mix-up, the Sharkey for squabble and the Tunney long count?

RECEPTION TENDERED TO STATE REGENT BY CATHOLIC DAUGHTERS

Number of Addresses Made To Large Gathering in The K. of C. Home

Catholic Daughters of America, Court Bristol, gave a reception Tuesday evening in honor of Miss Frances Maher, Kane, state regent and national treasurer, which combines figures of ancient religious customs and tedious designs resembling the old Grecian pottery. There is a fragile, beautiful pottery also made in Gaudalajara and is exquisite when used with hand blown glass of greenish blue, or grape color.

For our "at home" Mexican dinner, we would use peasant linen of the brightest colors, green or blue glasses, and rough, inexpensive pottery plates in color.

True Mexican Cookery
All cooking in Mexico is done over charcoal as there is no need of haste, nor is there coal. The cheaper cuts of meat and vegetables form the main dishes but the seasonings are perfectly blended and the slow cookery makes each dish a masterpiece.

Most of the cooking is done in brown clay dishes. Most families mold their own utensils from clay near at home. They are molded by untrained but skillful hands and are cheap and tough as iron. Water and fire only darkens them and they give years of service.

In the city hotels and restaurants, the cooking is more French than Spanish. Now American cookery is creeping in even to waffles and corn on the cob.

The recipes for the Mexican party have come from the Mexican villages where foreign cookery has not penetrated. Mexicans eat very sparingly and their staples are simple. They can create miracles with three basic ingredients, tortilla; chili; and frijoles.

Tortilla is a maize wafer. Corn is sometimes white, red or blue, depending on the locality in which it is grown. The maize wafer is made of finely ground meal, washed and reground between stones; then tossed and patted into thin cakes in a precise, traditional way and finally laid to brown on tin griddles over the glowing coals. When fried, the tortilla becomes a tostado.

Roll the tortilla around a cheese, onion and chili combination and the result is an enchilada.

Frijoles, the Mexican beans that are not unlike our kidney beans, are the staple starchy foods that takes the

COMING SATURDAY — Matinee and Evening

DONALD WOODS in "ROAD GANG"

Mexico City has increased interest in travel and friends are bringing back new ideas of our glamorous, courteous neighbors.

Colorful linens, fragile pottery and bubble glassware would be truly native.

For the table, use either natural colored, loosely woven linen, heavily embroidered in cream colored thread, or some gay Aztec design (stamped designs with colored threads and charts may be obtained in most department stores); or the sheer mats made of lace intricately woven on hairpins by Mexican women.

Marigolds, meaning "welcome" to the Mexicans, as they did to their Aztec ancestors, would make a bright centerpiece; though all flowers grow in profusion and are loved by the Mexicans. The Mexicans would likely use bright colored pottery from Oaxaca, or that from San Pedro Tlaquepaque, which combines figures of ancient religious customs and tedious designs resembling the old Grecian pottery. There is a fragile, beautiful pottery also made in Gaudalajara and is exquisite when used with hand blown glass of greenish blue, or grape color.

For our "at home" Mexican dinner, we would use peasant linen of the brightest colors, green or blue glasses, and rough, inexpensive pottery plates in color.

Most of the cooking is done in brown clay dishes. Most families mold their own utensils from clay near at home. They are molded by untrained but skillful hands and are cheap and tough as iron. Water and fire only darkens them and they give years of service.

In the city hotels and restaurants, the cooking is more French than Spanish. Now American cookery is creeping in even to waffles and corn on the cob.

The recipes for the Mexican party have come from the Mexican villages where foreign cookery has not penetrated. Mexicans eat very sparingly and their staples are simple. They can create miracles with three basic ingredients, tortilla; chili; and frijoles.

Tortilla is a maize wafer. Corn is sometimes white, red or blue, depending on the locality in which it is grown. The maize wafer is made of finely ground meal, washed and reground between stones; then tossed and patted into thin cakes in a precise, traditional way and finally laid to brown on tin griddles over the glowing coals. When fried, the tortilla becomes a tostado.

Roll the tortilla around a cheese, onion and chili combination and the result is an enchilada.

Frijoles, the Mexican beans that are not unlike our kidney beans, are the staple starchy foods that takes the place of our potato and rice. Frijoles are usually fried.

Chili Pepper Paste

This paste is used in seasoning almost all dishes. Remove all seeds and inside veins from chili peppers. Wash well and cover with hot water. Soak in a warm place until very soft. Grind through the food chopper several times. This paste mixes easily with other foods and imparts a delightful flavor.

If dried pods of chili cannot be purchased, substitute one teaspoon of commercial chili powder for each tablespoon of paste called for in the following recipes.

Chili Con Carne

One fourth pound of pork; one clove of garlic; one fourth cup fat; one pound of beef, either neck or shank; one large onion and six teaspoons of pepper paste; salt to taste.

Cut meat in half inch cubes and sear over in a heavy pan in which the fat has been previously melted. When seared on all sides, add seasonings and cover with water. Place over a low fire and simmer for two to three hours, adding a little water if needed. When the meat is tender, the sauce should be a rich red, thick and smooth.

opa De Arroz

One cup of rice; one clove of garlic; one pint of tomatoes; two tablespoons fat; one pint boiling water; one tablespoon pepper paste; one onion, finely chopped.

Wash and drain the rice well. Heat the fat in a saucepan and add the raw rice, onion and garlic. Cook only until yellow, stirring constantly. Heat the tomatoes, add the rice, pepper paste and boiling water. Cover closely and cook for 15 minutes, then add salt and

Arroz y Gallina a la Valenciana

One tender chicken; one slice onion; one half clove garlic; two tablespoons pepper paste; one cup rice; two cups tomatoes; three tablespoons fat; water to cover chicken.

Prepare chicken as for frying, salt and dredge with flour, then brown in hot fat. Cover with boiling water and cook slowly until tender and liquid is reduced to two cups. Heat tomatoes, add rice and seasonings, prepare as for "Sopa de Arroz." Add chicken and cook gently until rice is tender and liquid is absorbed. Arrange on a platter and garnish with rings of red and green pepper.

Huevos

Six eggs; two tablespoons minced onion; two tablespoons minced green pepper; one half cup chopped fresh tomatoes; one half teaspoon salt; one half teaspoon cayenne; two tablespoons melted fat; buttered toast; one teaspoon minced parsley.

Cook the onion and green pepper in the melted fat until slightly brown. Add the tomatoes, salt and cayenne, cover closely and set on the very low heat; preferably to keep hot but not to cook. Fry the eggs on both sides, lay each egg on a round of toast, and pour the hot sauce over it, garnishing with minced parsley.

Other Mexican Foods

Cafe, or coffee, Mexican style, is served with hot milk or cream. This is the most appropriate drink to serve with Mexican food.

Pineapple is often used for dessert. French bread is used in place of tortillas in many places.

LANDRETH BALL PARK TO BE OFFICIALLY OPENED SATURDAY; BURGESS TO TOSS OUT FIRST BALL

The Landreth Baseball Club will open its new grounds, the Landreth Baseball Park, South Bristol, and play its first game of the season here on Saturday when as the initial attraction the local club is scheduled to meet the Mt. Holly team. The game will get underway at three o'clock but will be preceded by the opening festivities.

At 1:30 the Legion Bugle Corp will leave the American Legion Home on Radcliffe street and parade down Radcliffe to Mill street, along Otter street to the Landreth Ball Park, arriving at two o'clock. The Cadets will stage their well known and prize winning drill.

At the conclusion of the Cadet drill the Mt. Holly Club will take the field for practice, followed by the practice period for the Landreth nine.

Promptly at three o'clock Burgess Clifford L. Anderson will formally open the grounds and following a short speech will toss out the first ball.

Mt. Holly has one of the strongest semi-pro teams in this neighborhood and defeated the "Farmers" in the opening game at Mt. Holly on May 10th, 5-3.

Landreth's Seeds—Rockhill, shortstop; Barrett, left field; Dougherty or Gotwald, third base; Purcell, catcher; Hibbs, right field; Hines, center field; Heftman, second base; Bruce or Piteo, first base; Sullivan, pitcher.

The other members of the Landreth squad are Jimmy Messilla, Campbell Breslin, Turner Ashby, "Jake" Paul, Hal Snyder.

Hutchinson will be behind the plate with Hemms on the bases.

The Landreth Ball Park will be in perfect shape for the contest. A large crowd is expected and Manager Landreth has announced that only the better teams will appear on the Landreth schedule.

Coming Along Fast

Jack Trammell, towering negro fighter of Youngstown, O., is nomination of Middleweight fans as leading contender for the heavy-weight crown. Contract troubles have kept him off New York big-time cards to date but his knockout record makes him a favorite with the cash customers.

Two of his hits were doubles, while the other two were singles. The Hibbs made eleven safe blows, while the Excelsior team could muster but five.

LeRoy Devlin again pitched superbly for the winners. From the first canto to the sixth, he failed to allow a safe blow, being hit for two bingles in the first and three during the last two sessions. In the final frame, the Excelsior team rallied to count a pair of tallies and place the tying runs on base but Eastlack saved the game with a nice catch of Bragg's lift to left.

For the losing aggregation, "Skinny" Davis did the work from the firing line. He fanned nine batters and was given ragged support. Thompson, with two hits, and Roe, with four, did most of the damage against the colored twirler as the remainder of the team connected for five hits. The Hibbs had but one miscue while the Excelsior team was charged with four:

COMMUNICATIONS

Sports Editor, Courier:

I would like to ask why the ten teams in the Bristol Twilight League and the teams using the Leedom field do not erect a wire screen as a protection to the fans and for the automobiles that are parked by the field. This screen could be placed between the seats and extending to first base and then as far as the third base line. This would also prevent a number of balls from becoming lost.

Yours truly,
JAMES P. KILGALLON,
(Other Sports On Page Four.)

LANGHORNE

Mrs. Warren Randall had the misfortune to fracture her ankle when she fell from a step-ladder last Thursday.

Miss Catherine Keller, Mahanoy City, was the guest of Miss Elsie Paul over the week-end.

Harry Frederick is converting the second floor of his house into an apartment.

Mrs. William A. Thomas was a recent visitor of his father in Nanticoke, Barbara Rollhaus, who underwent a tonsil operation in Mercer Hospital, Trenton, N. J., returned home Saturday.

Mrs. Julie F. Sealey, who has been in Florida for the past six weeks, returned home Saturday. Her father, A. C. Colby, and Miss Colby, who have been South for some time, accompanied her. The trip was made by motor with the exception of the journey from Norfolk to Baltimore, when they traveled by water.

An installation service for the recently elected Epworth League officers took place Sunday evening in the Methodist Church, by the Rev. Walter F. Humphrey: President, Miss Marjorie York; first vice-president, Miss Dorothy Longshore; second vice-president, Miss Vida Post; third vice-president, Eugene Boyd; fourth vice-president, Anderson Wessaw and Mrs.

Martha Hisey; secretary, Miss Elizabeth Williamson; treasurer, Miss Ida Paxson; musical director, Miss Sally Mytton.

RACCAGNO ON CARD FOR ST. ANN'S ARENA

"Johnny" Raccagno, the hardest puncher to be developed in amateur circles here, is anxiously waiting the going which will swing him into action in the opening show of the outdoor season which will be held in the St. Ann's Arena, Wood street, Monday evening. It is most likely that Johnny will meet George Jones, Seymour, in a return match.

Jones was awarded the verdict over Raccagno several weeks ago. The bout was close and exciting and the decision was very questionable. Since then Raccagno has been clamoring for an encore with his colored opponent. In his last bout here Raccagno scored a decisive victory over Oliver McCall, East Side. Raccagno's record is ten victories and two defeats.

The most promising of the Purple and Gold fighters is Tony Maglione who has a string of five straight triumphs. Several of the clubs in Philadelphia are after the scalp of Tony who since his debut hasn't been beaten. Maglione would like very much to meet Joe Martino, Seymour, whom he knocked out in the second round a month ago. In the first round of this battle, Martino and Maglione gave the fans one of the fastest sessions ever seen in this vicinity.

The bouts are still in the makings and to date none of them have been sanctioned by the Middle Atlantic district of the A. A. U. under whose jurisdiction the bouts are being run.

The few remaining reserve seats can be procured by phoning the St. Ann's club-house, 9934, and asking for Charles Alta.

COX IS VICTOR; THROWS MANAGOFF

TRENTON, May 21—Winding up the indoor wrestling season last night at the Arena, Joe Cox, burly Cleveland grappler, disposed of Ivan Managoff, of California, in a rough but interesting bout before a slim crowd.

Cox, after losing the first fall on a body slam, came back and made Ivan quit for the second fall and then gained the match by tossing his opponent into the ropes and falling on him. It should be mentioned that as Managoff came bouncing off the ropes, Cox knocked him for a loop with a shoulder charge. Cox weighed 224; Managoff, 222.

Ed Fischer, former Rutgers griddler, tried the iron man stunt last night, but was forced to bow to Hank Barber, ex-Dartmouth athlete, after conquering Sailor Al Billings. Floyd Marshall, who was to have wrestled Barber, failed to put in an appearance.

In the other bout of the evening, Abie Coleman, 205, of California, and Charlie Strack, former Olympic wrestler, tugged to a 30-minute draw.

EDDIE ROE AIDS "HIBS" TO WIN 4TH STRAIGHT

With "Eddie" Roe leading the attack, the Hibernians chalked up their fourth consecutive win of the Bristol Twilight League last night on Leedom's field, trimming the Excelsior Club, 6-3, in a stiff contest.

Roe wielded his willow four times during the tilt and four times he smacked safe blows to the outfield.
